Mobilization Chieftain Quits; Strike Looms

Wilson Disagrees With Wage Board's Hike Suggestion

WASHINGTON, March 31 — (P)—Charles E. Wilson's sudden resignation as mobilization director in protest at administration steel price policies has dimmed hopes of averting a nationwide steel strike April 8.

The industry, resuming peace talks in New York with the CIO United Steelworkers, found itself with no assurance of a price boost to offset a government-recommended 17½-cent an hour wage increase.

The President, in accepting Wilson's resignation, declared the wage terms recommended by the Wage Stabilization Board were "by no means unreasonable." He said he believed steel profits were "many times higher" than the proposed new wage costs.

Wilson's letter told the President that he could not "accept public responsibility for major stabilization actions which I can not control."

ORIGINALLY, Wilson favored neither wage nor price increases in steel. He told associates they would have the widest inflationary repercussions.

When the WSB this month adopted the 17½-cent-an-hour recommendation, he protested that it was "a serious threat" to economic stability. But he finally conceded that it must be the basis for negotiation between the industry and CIO's 650,000 steel unionists.

Convinced that no settlement could be reached unless "part of the cost" were offset by assurance of a steel price ceiling boost, Wilson flew to Key West last weekend and obtained what he regarded as an "understanding" to that effect with Truman.

But last Friday, Wilson wrote the President, "you changed your mind."

This was the day that Truman talked at length with Economic Stabilizer Roger L. Putnam and Price Director Ellis Arnall. Both known to oppose any price boosts beyond the existing ceiling formula.

By that time, however, Wilson had indicated to the steel companies the government's willingness to adjust prices if necessary. The figure of a $5-a-ton increase has been mentioned unofficially. The "big six" steel producers promptly invited the union into the New York negotiations. Now the price assurance is gone.

McGrath Sour On Cleanup Man Morris

WASHINGTON, March 31 — (P)—Attorney General J. Howard McGrath said Monday he wouldn't appoint Newbold Morris, government corruption cleanup man, as a special assistant if he had to do it over again.

Testifying before a House Judiciary Subcommittee, McGrath also said he had not filled out the financial questionnaire sent him by Morris and does not know whether he will do so.

Morris, as his first step in a "clean up" of the government, has sent several thousand top officials a questionnaire asking for detailed information on their outside income and net financial worth.

Morris, a prominent New York lawyer and a Republican, was appointed to the job by President Truman, but technically is a special assistant to the attorney general.

McGrath was in the witness chair of the House group which is investigating the way he has run the Justice Department.

Rep. Keating (R-N. Y.), who fired the questions about Morris at the attorney general, told McGrath he understood Morris' deadline for answering the questionnaires is April 7.

He asked whether McGrath had filled out his yet.

"No, sir," the attorney general replied.

Keating: "You intend to, of course."

McGrath: "I am not sure whether I will or not. I haven't decided either whether I'll fill it out or whether I will advise anyone else in the government to do so."

FBI Aide Tells How Communists Form 'Peace' Groups In Columbus

COLUMBUS, March 31 — (P)—Columbus peace groups, including pastors and Ohio State University professors, were dominated by the Communist Party, a witness told the Ohio UnAmerican Activities Committee Monday.

The witness was Mrs. Martha Edmiston of near Waynesville in Warren County, employed since 1942 as a publicist at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton.

Mrs. Edmiston said she and her husband, John, were informants of the FBI while members of the Communist Party in 1940 and 1941.

Mrs. Edmiston said Communists organized neighborhood peace groups in various sections of Columbus. She said the party controlled the groups, although many members were unaware of it.

The groups finally organized a huge peace mobilization meeting in 1940 attended by nearly 500 persons. Speakers included Rep. Martin L. Sweeney of Cleveland (D-Ohio), dean of Women Esther Gaw of Ohio State University and Mrs. Edmiston.

SHE SAID her speech was edited by Communist Steve Gratton, who with his wife, Nelrene, were top Communists in Columbus at that time.

She said the Communists then branched out in Columbus by organizing the North Side Peace League. The organization meeting, she said, was at the home of Mrs. Frank Hartman, wife of an Ohio professor.

The witness said their son, John Hartman, was a friend of Communist Joseph Sokol, now active in the party in Toledo, and Herb Siens, a party functionary.

The next meeting, Mrs. Edmiston said, was in Indiana Methodist Church. The church pastor was the Rev. John Dickhaut. Mrs. Edmiston said Communist members controlled the meeting of nearly 100 persons.

The Communists then organized the Linden Peace League, the South Side Peace League and the West Side Peace League. All these organizations were merged into the Columbus Emergency Peace Mobilization with an office on North High Street.

The chairman, she said, was Mrs. Chester Williams of Powell and Siens was the executive secretary.

Mrs. Edmiston said members of the city-wide peace group, none of whom she knew as Communists, included Ohio State Dean Gaw, OSU Prof. Homer Hockett, Dr. William H. Reither of Ohio State and several Columbus pastors, including the Revs. Roy Burkhardt, John Dickhaut, J. Ashburne Jr., J. Carlton Babbs and Harold F. Bremer.

It's Blue Monday For Ohio Dems; Truman Leaves Them Out On Limb

COLUMBUS, March 31 — (P)—A lot of Ohio Democratic Party leaders faced a confused political wash day Monday. They weren't quite sure just who they favored to be President.

President Truman pulled the rug out from under the feet of a number of Democrats when he said he wouldn't run again.

Many Ohio leaders figured that even if Truman pulled the finger not to run he would put the decision on an heir apparent. So, they rang in former U. S. Sen. Robert Bulkley as the favorite son of Ohio Democrats, obviously subject to the wishes of President Truman on the second ballot at the party's national convention.

Under this setup, they carried on a bitter fight against Estes Kefauver, the Tennessee senator who grabbed the brass ring with his crime investigating committee.

BUT, ON this politically blue Monday, these party leaders are faced with the unpleasant fact that President Truman retired from the arena without picking a favorite.

The question is: Who do the Bulkley favorite son delegates vote for now?

An even more bitter question is: Can they now be elected as delegates to seats for which Kefauver has entered delegate candidates?

One opinion is this: Lacking a rallying point, the Democratic leaders back of Bulkley — in other words, the leadership of the Ohio Democratic Party in power — will hurriedly try for an Ohioan around which to stand until they can sort out trends.

Their first move may be to try to get Gov. Frank J. Lausche to seek national office. But Lausche said many weeks ago that he had no national political ambitions and that he can not be drafted.

If President Truman doesn't pick a favored candidate between now and the May 6 primary, this is going to leave the Bulkley backers at serious disadvantage in trying to be elected delegates.

There are some alternatives. The Bulkley boys can pump for another candidate—say Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois. He may well be the Truman choice.

Or, they can join the Kefauver ranks in districts where he cannot run.

WASHINGTON, March 31 — (P)—Here are some of the first reactions by the nation's big newspapers regarding President Truman's announcement that he would not be a candidate for reelection:

New York Times—Mr. Truman may well have noted, and wisely decided to defer to, the one unmistakable public judgment that has been pronounced thus far in the presidential primaries — namely, the eagerness with which voters in both parties have been turning toward "new faces."

He's 'Draft-Proof' Too, Top Dem Tells Party Gathering

WASHINGTON, March 31 — (P)—President Truman has convinced all but the most stubborn die-hards that he is "draft-proof" and sent them on a desperate hunt for a new Democratic standard bearer.

Many seemed inclined to go along with his own apparent choice of Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois—if Stevenson will — but three avowed presidential candidates already in the field claimed new support and brightened prospects.

The always unpredictable Truman outdid himself Saturday night when, near the end of a "give 'em hell" speech against the Republicans at a $100-a-plate Democratic rally, he departed from his prepared text to say:

"I shall not be a candidate for reelection. I have served my country long and, I think, efficiently and honestly."

"I shall not accept a renomination. I do not feel that it is my duty to spend another four years in the White House."

THE MORE than 5,000 diners packed into the National Guard armory had applauded frequently, but when he came to his dramatic announcement there arose cries of "no, no."

Most of the audience, not all of them pro-Truman, appeared stunned, even shocked.

When newsmen asked if any developments could bring him to reverse his decision, the President said, "none whatever."

By the time he appeared at a Democratic reception Sunday afternoon at the Mayflower Hotel, some of his friends were still talking of a draft.

He had a hard time getting started, so insistent were the applause and cheers.

Our Ted Lewis Plans Concert Here April 25

Circleville's favorite native son, Bandmaster Ted Lewis, is to present a special concert for his old hometown in late April.

Appearing now in Beverly Hills, near Cincinnati, the famous maestro will leave that booking to present the concert here April 25.

Ben Gordon, close personal friend to the bandmaster, said the show will be presented in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum as a benefit for Berger hospital and for Circleville's public park which bears his name.

Gordon added that a two-hour show is planned, featuring Lewis and his band, plus the troupe in his company.

Local organizations are expected to be asked to sell tickets for the special benefit performance, while plans are afoot to have April 25 set aside as "Ted Lewis Day" here.

Gordon added that he plans to travel to Cincinnati Wednesday night to make final arrangements for the performance.

Who Will Be Democratic Choice?

Dopesters Trying To Solve Meaning Of Truman Move

WASHINGTON, March 31 — (P)—Now that President Truman is out of the running, who are the most likely choices for the Democratic nomination?

Here are the current possibilities, keeping in mind that a deadlocked convention might settle on someone who isn't even being mentioned at present:

Vice President Alben W. Barkley, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee. Sen. Kerr of Oklahoma. Sam Rayburn of Texas. Sen. Russell of Georgia. Gov. Stevenson of Illinois.

Of these, only the three senators, Kefauver, Kerr and Russell, are actively seeking delegates.

Will Truman try to name a successor?

Russell and Richard J. Nelson, aide to Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois who is reported to be Truman's choice for the nomination, said "No" on a television program Sunday.

SEN. HUMPHREY (D-Minn.) said Truman will not try to dictate a successor, but will take "a real interest in the selection."

Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) predicted Truman will interest himself to the extent of "making sure that his policies are carried on."

Would Stevenson accept? Stevenson himself hedged on NBC's "Meet the Press" television program. He still insisted he was running for governor of Illinois, but would not say he would refuse the nomination.

Will Truman's decision help or hurt Republican prospects of victory in November?

Harold E. Stassen, a candidate for the GOP nomination, said the Democrats would be more difficult to beat with Truman as their candidate.

Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, another GOP nominee candidate, said anyone the Democrats pick will be "weaker than Truman himself." He added they may have to turn back to Truman, implying a draft. Taft earlier had said he would rather run against Truman than anyone else. Truman had said the same of Taft.

CHAIRMAN Guy G. Gabrielson of the Republican National Committee said Truman "obviously has heard the voice of the people."

Sen. Bridges of New Hampshire, Senate minority leader, said Truman's decision was an "indication the President feels the chances for

Belgium Is Shy On Dues To NATO

BRUSSELS, March 31 — (P)—Belgium is short $240 million for this year's defense effort and may fail to meet her commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Defense Minister Eugene De Greef has managed so far to hold out against drastic paring of the defense budget which some ministers have proposed. He hinted at cuts, however, in a recent statement that about $60 million would be spent for certain military items only if other Atlantic treaty nations also fulfill their full NATO commitments.

Regarding Korea, Kefauver said he favored a get-tough policy to end the stalled truce negotiations. He said he would offer whatever political and military settlement the United Nations decided on "and have a time limit fixed for the acceptance of it."

If the deadline passed without acceptance of the settlement, he would try to bring the war to an end by military action.

He said he would have "no political compunctions" to bombing Manchuria's military concentrations and, with UN support, blocking China.

Huntington (W. Va.) Herald Dispatch—The President's astute political sense has finally persuaded him that the country has had enough. He knows he can't win.

Chicago Tribune—President Truman's decision not to run for reelection is a confession that he knows he has been found out.

Washington Post—The President made a wise decision. He is now bowing out of the 1952 race in a mood of disillusionment or bitterness. We surmise, however, that the recent turn of political events was the most powerful inducement in the President's mind. His popularity is at low ebb.

Baltimore Sun—What has to be remembered is that the man who bowed out is among the most acute political analysts we have. There have been steady reasons to believe Mr. Truman might want to run again if the question were one of beating Taft.

Best in his foreign policy. It may well stand above everything else he has done as proof that he can rise to an understanding of the country's good.

New York Daily News—We hope he will stick to his decision, regardless of the pressures to reconsider that seem certain to be put upon him by Fair Deal politicians in terror of defeat at the polls next Nov. 4. We've never been able to dislike him personally, though we've disliked and deplored many of his policies and official acts.

Baltimore Sun—What has to be remembered is that the man who bowed out is among the most acute political analysts we have. There have been steady reasons to believe Mr. Truman might want to run a Democratic victory this fall are mighty slim."

Gov. Earl Warren of California, a third GOP nominee candidate, merely said he could understand Truman's decision, and wished him happiness.

What will Truman's decision mean in his own party?

Democrats generally predicted it would touch off new bids for the party nomination.

Sen. Monroney (D-Okla.) said Kefauver, Russell and Kerr may be deadlocked at the convention, in which event Rayburn "may be a possible compromise."

Sen. McFarland of Arizona, Senate majority leader, said with Truman out "no one will be a cinch for the nomination."

Truman's decision to quit also placed Barkley and Douglas in the realm of possible candidates. Barkley promised a statement later this week. Douglas said in January he would not run.

What will Truman do when he leaves the White House?

He still has until April 29 to announce whether he will run for his old Senate seat from Missouri. There's not much chance of this now, say his friends, although he expressed a liking for Senate service. He said Saturday night, however, he already had served this country "long and, I think, efficiently and honestly."

In his private papers, published this month in "Mr. President," he says when he leaves the White House he may lecture on the general problems of government "from precinct worker to President."

Emergency Conference Is Called To Talk Ways To Combat Anthrax

COLUMBUS, March 31 — (P)—The State Agriculture Director has called an emergency conference of feed manufacturers and livestock feeding organizations for Tuesday to discuss ways to combat anthrax.

Director Howard S. Foust also reported 13 outbreaks of anthrax in hogs since Friday. A case was discovered in one new county, Darke, bringing to 42 the total Ohio counties affected.

The disease has been the cause of death to more than 500 hogs, four beef cattle and three dairy cows in Ohio.

Foust said the meeting also would deal with ways of minimizing the financial losses to feed manufacturers and feeding organizations.

The anthrax outbreak in Ohio has been traced by the Buchsich Division of Inland Products Co. of Columbus. Since the company also wholesales feed, the contaminated feed has gone through a number of Ohio feed dealers.

DEALERS have complained to the Agriculture Department that publicity about the contaminated feed is hurting their business. Because of the contamination, livestock feeders in many cases have turned to new foodstuffs for their animals.

Feed organizations say change in feed formulae affect the growth of hogs. Farmers are now fattening their animals to make them as heavy as possible.

Dr. Harry Geyer, state veterinarian, said he is asking the federal government for a list of all ships carrying imported bone meal which have docked in this country since last Dec. 1.

Through this list he plans to try and track down all bone meal that might have reached all Ohio feed dealers and farmers.

Geyer explained such imported feed frequently goes through a long chain of brokers and jobbers and will be difficult to trace.

Among those expected at Tuesday's conference are representatives of the Ohio Grange, Producers Livestock Cooperative Association, Ohio Council of Farmers Cooperatives, Independent Livestock Marketing Association, American Feed Manufacturers Association, U. S. Public Health Service, and the Ohio Agriculture Department.

They say Russia qualifies as a neutral and has every right to inspect troops and supplies moving into Korea during a truce. The Allies say Russia is in effect a belligerent and is unacceptable.

Staff officers have made no headway toward an agreement and for several days there have been reports that the issue would be handed to top negotiators.

A second group of staff officers working on plans for exchanging prisoners of war completed a full week of secret sessions. There was no hint whether the negotiators made progress.

MEANWHILE, Task Force 77 pilots showed their muscle Sunday and worked over Communist railroad lines in Northeast Korea.

U. S. Marine and Navy fliers reported 167 rail cuts, two bridges destroyed and numerous rail cars and supply trucks knocked out.

Twenty-five U. S. Sabre jets clashed Sunday with 70 Communist Mig-15 jets in a brief battle over Northwest Korea and damaged two Red fighters.

On the ground the 155-mile front was quiet.

He's 'Draft-Proof' Too, Top Dem Tells Party Gathering

WASHINGTON, March 31 — (P)—President Truman has convinced all but the most stubborn die-hards that he is "draft-proof" and sent them on a desperate hunt for a new Democratic standard bearer.

Many seemed inclined to go along with his own apparent choice of Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois—if Stevenson will — but three avowed presidential candidates already in the field claimed new support and brightened prospects.

The always unpredictable Truman outdid himself Saturday night when, near the end of a "give 'em hell" speech against the Republicans at a $100-a-plate Democratic rally, he departed from his prepared text to say:

"I shall not be a candidate for reelection. I have served my country long and, I think, efficiently and honestly."

"I shall not accept a renomination. I do not feel that it is my duty to spend another four years in the White House!"

THE MORE than 5,000 diners packed into the National Guard armory had applauded frequently, but when he came to his dramatic announcement there arose cries of "no, no."

Most of the audience, not all of them pro-Truman, appeared stunned, even shocked.

When newsmen asked if any developments could bring him to reverse his decision, the President said, "none whatever."

By the time he appeared at a Democratic reception Sunday afternoon at the Mayflower Hotel, some of his friends were still talking of a draft.

He had a hard time getting started, so insistent were the applause and cheers.

Our Ted Lewis Plans Concert Here April 25

Circleville's favorite native son, Bandmaster Ted Lewis, is to present a special concert for his old hometown in late April.

Appearing now in Beverly Hills, near Cincinnati, the famous maestro will leave that booking to present the concert here April 25.

Ben Gordon, close personal friend to the bandmaster, said the show will be presented in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum as a benefit for Berger hospital and for Circleville's public park which bears his name.

Gordon added that a two-hour show is planned, featuring Lewis and his band, plus the troupe in his company.

Local organizations are expected to be asked to sell tickets for the special benefit performance, while plans are afoot to have April 25 set aside as "Ted Lewis Day" here.

Gordon added that he plans to travel to Cincinnati Wednesday night to make final arrangements for the performance.

Who Will Be Democratic Choice?

Dopesters Trying To Solve Meaning Of Truman Move

WASHINGTON, March 31 — (P)—Now that President Truman is out of the running, who are the most likely choices for the Democratic nomination?

Here are the current possibilities, keeping in mind that a deadlocked convention might settle on someone who isn't even being mentioned at present:

Vice President Alben W. Barkley, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee. Sen. Kerr of Oklahoma. Sam Rayburn of Texas.

Sen. Russell of Georgia. Gov. Stevenson of Illinois.

Of these, only the three senators, Kefauver, Kerr and Russell, are actively seeking delegates.

Will Truman try to name a successor?

Russell and Richard J. Nelson, aide to Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois who is reported to be Truman's choice for the nomination, said "No" on a television program Sunday.

SEN. HUMPHREY (D-Minn) said Truman will not try to dictate a successor, but will take "a real interest in the selection."

Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) predicted Truman will interest himself to the extent of "making sure that his policies are carried on."

Would Stevenson accept? Stevenson himself hedged on NBC's "Meet the Press" television program. He still insisted he was running for governor of Illinois, but would not say he would refuse the nomination.

Will Truman's decision help or hurt Republican prospects of victory in November?

Harold E. Stassen, a candidate for the GOP nomination, said the Democrats would be more difficult to beat with Truman as their candidate.

Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, another GOP nominee candidate, said anyone the Democrats pick will be "weaker than Truman himself." He added they may have to turn back to Truman, implying a draft. Taft earlier had said he would rather run against Truman than anyone else. Truman had said the same of Taft.

CHAIRMAN Guy G. Gabrielson of the Republican National Committee said Truman "obviously has heard the voice of the people."

Sen. Bridges of New Hampshire, Senate minority leader, said Truman's decision was an "indication the President feels the chances for

Belgium Is Shy On Dues To NATO

BRUSSELS, March 31 — (P)—Belgium is short $240 million for this year's defense effort and may fail to meet her commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Defense Minister Eugene De-Greef has managed so far to hold out against drastic paring of the defense budget which some ministers have proposed. He hinted at cuts, however, in a recent statement that about $60 million would be spent for certain military items only if other Atlantic treaty nations also fulfill their full NATO commitments.

Regarding Korea, Kefauver said he favored a get-tough policy to end the stalled truce negotiations. He said he would offer whatever political and military settlement the United Nations decided on "and have a time limit fixed for the acceptance of it."

If the deadline passed without acceptance of the settlement, he would try to bring the war to an end by military action.

He said he would have "no political compunctions" to bombing "trenches" military concentrations and, with UN support, blockading China.

Huntington (W. Va.) Herald Dispatch—The President's astute political sense has finally persuaded him that the country has had enough. He knows he can't win.

Chicago Tribune—President Truman's decision not to run for reelection is a confession that he knows he has been found out.

Washington Post—The President made a wise decision. He is now bowing out of the 1952 race in a mood of disillusionment or bitterness. We surmise, however, that the recent turn of political events was the most powerful inducement in the President's mind. His popularity is at low ebb.

Truman's decision to quit also placed Barkley and Douglas in the realm of possible candidates. Barkley promised a statement later this week. Douglas said in January he would not run.

What will Truman do when he leaves the White House?

He still has until April 29 to announce whether he will run for his old Senate seat from Missouri. There's not much chance of this now, say his friends, although he expressed a liking for Senate service. He said Saturday night, however, he already had served this country "long and, I think, efficiently and honestly."

In his private papers, published this month in "Mr. President," he says when he leaves the White House he may lecture on the general problems of government "from precinct worker to President."

What will Truman's decision mean in his own party?

Democrats generally predicted it would touch off new bids for the party nomination.

Sen. Monroney (D-Okla) said Kefauver, Russell and Kerr may deadlock at the convention, in which event Rayburn "may be a possible compromise."

Sen. McFarland of Arizona, Senate majority leader, said with Truman out "no one will be a cinch for the nomination."

GOP Contests Tuesday May Clear Picture

Dem Candidates Also Pitted On Election Ballots

WASHINGTON, March 31 — (P)—While President Truman's weekend announcement that he would not be a candidate for reelection was a major story, chief interest Monday was in Tuesday's primary elections in Wisconsin and Nebraska.

They may well clear the political picture, especially on the Republican side of the fence. As the score—the one written by the people, not the professional politicians—now stands, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower commands attention.

The general's spontaneous victories in New Hampshire and Minnesota were spectacular. Question now is—can he continue his torrid pace?

Both the Wisconsin and Nebraska polls were considered here to be of top importance.

The Wisconsin primary, a pivotal election in any presidential year, took on added importance as a result of Truman's decision not to seek reelection.

Nebraska's presidential popularity contest has become a last-minute scramble for votes and no one could predict the outcome with any real assurance.

IF ANY LARGE shift of sentiment was developing in either Republican or Democratic ranks it went undetected by those keeping a close tab on the bitterly-contested primary races.

At stake in Wisconsin are 30 Republican delegates and 28 Democratic delegate votes in the presidential nominating conventions next July. But more important, observers feel, are the probable effects on the prospects of the three principal Republican candidates battling here, as well as the outlook for Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, the major Democratic candidate.

Commies Urge Top Command Truce Parley

MUNSAN, March 31 — (P)—Communist staff officers Monday proposed top level negotiations to try to break the deadlock over whether Russia should help police a Korean truce.

The Reds nominated Russia as one of their three representatives on a neutral inspection commission last Feb. 16.

They say Russia qualifies as a neutral and has every right to inspect troops and supplies moving into Korea during a truce. The Allies say Russia is in effect a belligerent and is unacceptable.

Staff officers have made no headway toward an agreement and for several days there have been reports that the issue would be handed to top negotiators.

A second group of staff officers working on plans for exchanging prisoners of war completed a full week of secret sessions. There was no hint whether the negotiators made progress.

MEANWHILE, Task Force 77 pilots showed their muscle Sunday and worked over Communist railroad lines in Northeast Korea.

U. S. Marine and Navy fliers reported 187 rail cuts, two bridges destroyed and numerous rail cars and supply trucks knocked out.

Twenty-five U. S. Sabre jets clashed Sunday with 70 Communist MiG-15 jets in a brief battle over Northwest Korea and damaged two Red fighters.

On the ground the 155-mile front was quiet.

It Costs More To See Castles

LONDON, March 31 — (P)—The price of admission to the stately homes of England went up a few pennies Monday. The lords and ladies say times are getting tougher.

Rising costs were blamed for a new boost in prices for the chance to see the castles Britain's great used to live in.

Greeks Executed

ATHENS, March 31 — (P)—Four Greek Communists convicted of leading a giant spy ring were executed before dawn Monday by a firing squad.

There was no information available from U. S. Army headquarters after the all clear at 12:08 a. m. on whether the plane had been identified.

BALBOA, March 31 — (P)—An unidentified plane flying over the Panama Canal caused a 57-minute air raid alert in the canal zone Sunday night.

GOP Contests Tuesday May Clear Picture

Harold E. Stassen are competing for Republican delegates.

Taft said Sunday he did not "see how President Truman's decision" affects the Republican contest in Wisconsin.

But the Democratic race, in which Kefauver has been contending against two separate slates, each claiming to represent the President, may be sharply influenced by Truman's announcement.

Wisconsin political observers, throughout the campaign, have often expressed the belief thousands of Democrats in the state may cross party lines Tuesday and vote for Stassen or Warren in an effort to defeat Taft. The labor vote, they said, may shift to the GOP.

ONE OF Kefauver's campaign lieutenants recently said, "We are more afraid of that than we are of the other two slates."

The big questions in Nebraska, which the voting may answer, are these:

1. Will Taft check the surge of sentiment for Eisenhower and regain some of the prestige he lost in the New Hampshire and Minnesota elections?

2. Will Kerr topple Kefauver and get his own presidential bandwagon rolling?

The voters held the answers to both questions and were being bombarded with telephone calls, speeches, radio and television appeals and advertisements.

The Republican contest was dominated by write-in drives on behalf of Taft and Eisenhower whose names are not on the ballot.

The fight has overshadowed the efforts of supporters of Stassen, the only major GOP candidate whose name is on the ballot.

On the Democratic side, the decision by President Truman not to run again reduced the Kerr-Kefauver battle to a more clear-cut test of their popularity.

In addition to voting for their presidential choice, Nebraskans will choose 18 Republican and 12 Democratic national convention delegates. But the popularity contest will not necessarily be a clear indication of how the delegates will vote in the presidential nominating conventions.

Orient Man Bound To Jury

Mrs. Truman Knew Secret, But Kept It

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP)—There is one thing for certain—Mrs. Harry S. Truman can keep a secret.

The story is that President Truman whispered to Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn at Saturday night's Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner that he intended to announce he would not be a candidate for reelection.

"Nobody knows but Bess that I'm going to do it," Truman is quoted as saying.

The only tipoff was that in recent weeks Mrs. Truman has appeared happier and more relaxed.

It is no secret that she has found the role of First Lady trying. It's lonely for a woman who likes simple friendliness, rather than the stiff formality that prevails in the White House.

It is generally believed that Mrs. Truman had been urging her husband not to run again. She felt he had given enough of himself to the world's toughest job—and he is not as young (nearly 68) as he was.

She won her campaign, but said not a word.

Ohio Write-In Ban To Face Court Test

COLUMBUS, March 31.—(AP)—An Ohio law that bans write-in votes for candidates for delegate to national political conventions is facing a legal battle.

James D. Nolan of Cleveland said he expects to file a mandamus action in the Ohio Supreme Court this week. He said Cleveland, Cincinnati and Columbus lawyers will represent him.

Nolan is a backer of Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), candidate for the Democratic nomination for President. Nolan's name was ruled off the Cuyahoga County ballot for technical reasons. Delegates will be chosen May 7.

Nolan is a former publicist for the state Department of Industrial Relations and the state Liquor Department.

He said Cleveland legal experts feel the law barring write-in candidates is contrary to the Ohio constitution as well as some Ohio election laws.

Under the law, no blank spaces are provided for write-ins, and any names written in are not counted.

Nolan says Kefauver has lost more than a score of delegates who did not have enough petitions or who petitions were ruled out because of technical reasons.

Five Persons Hurt In Two Accidents

Five persons were injured in two traffic mishaps in Pickaway County last weekend.

Two men and their wives were hurt at about 7:30 p. m. Saturday on Route 56, about nine miles east of Circleville.

Robert Hudl, 44, of Columbus, said he was driving east on Route 56 when he lost control of his auto on a sharp curve.

The Hull auto went onto the berm to the right, into a farm fence and over a tree stump. Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Carl Radcliff, who investigated, said the stump ripped the bottom of the auto badly.

INJURED WERE the driver, who suffered head and mouth injuries; his wife, Eleanor Hudl, 32, who suffered a lacerated face and mouth and lost four teeth; Harry Winett, 33, back injuries; and his wife, Martha Winett, 29, cuts and bruises. They were treated in Berger hospital and released.

Other accident happened at about 1 p. m. Saturday at Court and Corwin streets.

An auto driven south by Lowell D. Thomas, 19, of 717 South Court street, and a car driven east by Mrs. Roscoe Warren of 213 Linden Lane collided in the intersection. Both drivers claimed the green light.

Injured was Ronnie Warren, 11, who suffered minor mouth injuries.

Reds Happy That Truman Plans To Quit

LONDON, March 31.—(AP)—President Truman's withdrawal from the presidential campaign lists was a top story in Western Europe's newspapers Monday.

Both non-Communist and Red papers generally viewed the President's decision as a boost to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's chances at the White House — something many non-Red West Europeans would like to see.

The Reds were delighted at the promised departure from office of the man who led the Western fight to contain Communism in Europe.

The non-Communist papers also stressed the shock and confusion they said Truman's decision had created in the ranks of his party.

Danish Foreign Minister Ole Bjoern Kraft probably spoke for all governments west of the Iron Curtain when he said Western Europe would follow the presidential election with the expectation, "whatever the outcome," that the U. S. would continue the "major lines of policy which, during President Truman's term of office, have contributed so decisively to the safeguarding of peace, freedom and democracy."

Most non-Communist papers had some editorial applause for the President's record in office. Italy's Communist Organ, l'Unita of Rome, sounded the Red keynote with another scathing denunciation of Truman and U. S. policy.

Columbus Driver Pleads Innocent

JAMES ALEXANDER, 61, of Columbus, entered a plea of innocent to an accusation of drunken driving Monday in Pickaway County common pleas court.

After making the plea, Alexander was placed on $200 bond by the court and is to have trial April 10. The Columbus man was arrested by State Highway Patrolman Bob Greene and presented in court on an affidavit filed by Prosecutor Guy Cline.

Two Men Lose Licenses For Drunk Driving

Two drunken drivers had their driving rights cut off for one year each Saturday in Pickaway County common pleas court.

They were Bonnie Boggs, 31, of Ashville, and Charles R. Larkin, 32, of Columbus.

In addition to losing their driving privileges one year, each man was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail. Both sentences were suspended in favor of probation, however.

Boggs was arrested on 752 Friday following an accident, while Larkin also was arrested Friday. Both men were arrested by State Highway Patrolman Bob Greene.

Both drunk drivers appeared before the court of Judge William D. Radcliff on affidavits presented by prosecutor Guy Cline.

interrupting, but finally he urged them to "get in there and pitch" for a November victory. He promised to work as enthusiastically for the party ticket "as if I were on it."

Most of the world's press bannetlined Truman's decision to step down, but it had not yet been published in Moscow. It was safe to say the Russians will not grieve.

The President, meanwhile, kept silent on his choice of a successor. Gov. Stevenson seemed more receptive toward the nomination than formerly.

AS OTHER political leaders began trotting out "favorite sons" and "dark horses," there were few who thought the President would not take an active interest in selection of a new standard bearer. He told the reception: "I am just as sure as that I am standing here that the Democratic convention in July will nominate a winner. I will be in there just the same as if I were the nominee because I'm not a fair day Democrat."

Stevenson was asked directly on NBC's "Meet The Press" television program: "Will you say that you will not accept the Democratic nomination?"

"I will not say that," Stevenson replied.

One immediate effect of Truman's action was to spur the campaigning of Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, the crime investigator who gave the President a stunning defeat in the New Hampshire primary, and the hopes of Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, candidate of the anti-Truman forces in the South.

At the same time, pro-Truman Sen. Robert Kerr of Oklahoma, campaigning for delegates for transfer to Truman, openly became a candidate in his own right.

GOP Contests Tuesday May Clear Picture

 Harold E. Stassen are competing for Republican delegates.
 Taft said Sunday he did not "see how President Truman's decision" affects the Republican contest in Wisconsin.
 But the Democratic race, in which Kefauver has been contending against two separate slates, each claiming to represent the President, may be sharply influenced by Truman's announcement.
 Wisconsin political observers, throughout the campaign, have often expressed the belief thousands of Democrats in the state may cross party lines Tuesday and vote for Stassen or Warren in an effort to defeat Taft. The labor vote, they said, may shift to the GOP.

ONE OF Kefauver's campaign lieutenants recently said, "We are more afraid of that than we are of the other two slates."
 The big questions in Nebraska, which the voting may answer, are these:
 1. Will Taft check the surge of sentiment for Eisenhower and regain some of the prestige he lost in the New Hampshire and Minnesota elections?
 2. Will Kerr topple Kefauver and get his own presidential bandwagon rolling?
 The voters held the answers to both questions and were being bombarded with telephone calls, speeches, radio and television appeals and advertisements.
 The Republican contest was dominated by write-in drives on behalf of Taft and Eisenhower whose names are not on the ballot.
 The fight has overshadowed the efforts of supporters of Stassen, the only major GOP candidate whose name is on the ballot.
 On the Democratic side, the decision by President Truman not to run again reduced the Kerr-Kefauver battle to a more clear-cut test of their popularity.
 In addition to voting for their presidential choice, Nebraskans will choose 18 Republican and 12 Democratic national convention delegates. But the popularity contest will not necessarily be a clear indication of how the delegates will vote in the presidential nominating conventions.

Mrs. Truman Knew Secret, But Kept It

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(P)—There is one thing for certain—Mrs. Harry S. Truman can keep a secret.
 The story is that President Truman whispered to Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn at Saturday night's Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner that he intended to announce he would not be a candidate for reelection.
 "Nobody knows but Bess that I'm going to do it," Truman is quoted as saying.
 The only tipoff was that in recent weeks Mrs. Truman has appeared happier and more relaxed.
 It is no secret that she has found the role of First Lady trying. It's lonely for a woman who likes simple friendliness, rather than the stiff formality that prevails in the White House.
 It is generally believed that Mrs. Truman had been urging her husband not to run again. She felt he had given enough of himself to the world's toughest job—and he is not as young (nearly 68) as he was.
 She won her campaign, but said not a word.

Ohio Write-In Ban To Face Court Test

COLUMBUS, March 31.—(P)—An Ohio law that bans write-in votes for candidates for delegate to national political conventions is facing a legal battle.

James D. Nolan of Cleveland said he expects to file a mandamus action in the Ohio Supreme Court this week. He said Cleveland, Cincinnati and Columbus lawyers will represent him.

Nolan is a backer of Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), candidate for the Democratic nomination for President. Nolan's name was ruled off the Cuyahoga County ballot for technical reasons. Delegates will be chosen May 7.

Nolan is a former publicist for the state Department of Industrial Relations and the state Liquor Department.

He said Cleveland legal experts feel the law barring write-in candidates is contrary to the Ohio constitution as well as some Ohio election laws.

Under the law, no blank spaces are provided for write-ins, and any names written in are not counted.

Nolan says Kefauver has lost more than a score of delegates who did not have enough petitions or whose petitions were ruled out because of technical reasons.

Five Persons Hurt In Two Accidents

Five persons were injured in two traffic mishaps in Pickaway County last weekend.

Two men and their wives were hurt at about 7:20 p. m. Saturday on Route 56, about nine miles east of Circleville.

Robert Hull, 44, of Columbus, said he was driving east on Route 56 when he lost control of his auto on a sharp curve.

The Hull auto went onto the berm to the right, into a farm fence and over a tree stump. Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Carl Radcliff, who investigated, said the stump ripped the bottom of the auto badly.

INJURED WERE the driver, who suffered head and mouth injuries; his wife, Eleanor Hull, 32, who suffered a lacerated face and mouth and lost four teeth; Harry Winett, 33, back injuries; and his wife, Martha Winett, 29, cuts and bruises. They were treated in Berger hospital and released.

Other accident happened at about 1 p. m. Saturday at Court and Corn streets.

An auto driven south by Lowell D. Thomas, 19, of 717 South Court street, and a car driven east by Mrs. Roscoe Warren of 213 Linden Lane collided in the intersection. Both drivers claimed the green light.

Injured was Ronnie Warren, 11, who suffered minor mouth injuries.

Reds Happy That Truman Plans To Quit

LONDON, March 31.—(P)—President Truman's withdrawal from the presidential campaign lists was a top story in Western Europe's newspapers Monday.

Both non-Communist and Red papers generally viewed the President's decision as a boost to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's chances at the White House — something many non-Red West Europeans would like to see.

The Reds were delighted at the promised departure from office of the man who led the Western fight to contain Communism in Europe.

The non-Communist papers also stressed the shock and confusion they said Truman's decision had created in the ranks of his party.

Danish Foreign Minister Ole Bjoern Kraft probably spoke for all governments west of the Iron Curtain when he said Western Europe would follow the presidential election with the expectation, "whatever the outcome," that the U. S. would continue the "major lines of policy which, during President Truman's term of office, have contributed so decisively to the safeguarding of peace, freedom and democracy."

Most non-Communist papers had some editorial applause for the President's record in office. Italy's Communist Organ, l'Unita di Roma, sounded the Red keynote with another scathing denunciation of Truman and U. S. policy.

Columbus Driver Pleads Innocent

James Alexander, 61, of Columbus, entered a plea of innocent to an accusation of drunken driving Monday in Pickaway County common pleas court.

After making the plea, Alexander was placed on $200 bond by the court and is to have trial April 10.

The Columbus man was arrested by State Highway Patrolman Bob Greene and presented in court on an affidavit filed by Prosecutor Guy Cline.

Lucille Neal Sings When Spanish Fails

Local Woman Returns From Puerto Rico

When Pickaway County's International Farm Youth Exchange delegate to Puerto Rico could not communicate with her hostess in plain language, she used song.

Miss Lucille Neal said today that, although the mother of the family with which she lived in Puerto Rico could speak only Spanish, she enjoyed American songs.

Miss Neal said when she arrived in Puerto Rico, "they didn't sing much." Their music is for dancing. It has rhythm but lacks words.

"When I left, the family and school were singing our folk songs," she added.

Miss Neal, 22, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Von Neal, who farm 122 acres near Orient.

SHE WAS the last IFYE from Ohio in 1951 and was among the first American youths to go to Puerto Rico. She was there about six weeks, returning home March 22.

The IFYE program is designed to promote world understanding through exchange visits between farm youth in the United States and other countries. It is financed by contributions and administered by the agricultural extension service.

Miss Neal said she was "treated like a queen" and described her Puerto Rican host family and school children she met as offering "no end of hospitality."

Puerto Rico is struggling with unemployment, health and sanitation problems. The people are proud of their "operation bootstrap," a plan to raise living standards through their own initiative but they give the United States credit for assistance.

In 4-H and agricultural extension, projects are designed for needs. "If a girl needs home beautification," Miss Neal said, "that's her project." They do not use standard project books. Many projects now teach food preservation.

As many other exchanges to other countries have discovered, Miss Neal found many wrong impressions to correct. Puerto Ricans expected she would drink, smoke and talk a lot. They were surprised when she was willing to work in the fields.

Most agriculture is on 50 to 60 degree slopes that have to be hand-cultivated. Sugar cane is the principal crop.

Miss Neal will be available to speak at meetings in the state and

A NEW MICROWAVE RELAY SYSTEM—together with telephone and VHF radio—will put Texas Easterners in 14 states in point-to-point communication. Pipeliners use these modern forms of communication to achieve greater efficiency and safety in natural gas pipeline operations.

Centrifugal compressors, like those shown above, help speed natural gas to the consuming areas. Driven by powerful electric motors which total 189,000 horsepower in sixteen stations, these new compressors make Texas Eastern one of the nation's major users of electric power.

From this telemeter panel, dispatchers record the flow of gas at delivery points miles away. Operating information that used to take hours to gather is provided in seconds by these amazing instruments. Telemetering is another step to insure safe and dependable gas service.

TEXAS EASTERN PIPELINERS PUT NEW IDEAS TO WORK TO TRANSPORT NATURAL GAS IN PICKAWAY COUNTY

New ideas and modern methods are constantly being researched and put to use by Texas Eastern in pumping natural gas in greater quantities to domestic and industrial users in the Appalachian and Eastern Seaboard areas. Texas Eastern engineers are using these new developments in every phase of pipelining.

A microwave radio system similar to the relay network which speeds television from coast-to-coast is being constructed along the Company's new 30-inch pipeline. Fifty-six microwave towers will provide pipeline points between Shreveport, Louisiana, and Linden, New Jersey, with round-the-clock communication. Microwave, tied in with telephone and VHF radio, is a new development that will play an important part in maintaining constant communications required for efficient pipeline operations.

The use of centrifugal compressors for pumping gas was pioneered for the natural gas transmission industry by Texas Eastern. These machines, whose wheel-like impellers whirl at 3,600 revolutions per minute, push natural gas through the pipeline to delivery points. To operate these new type compressors, Texas Eastern purchases vast quantities of electric power from local utility companies.

Quick and efficient gas measurement and delivery is made possible by a device called the telemeter. This instrument measures gas flow at pipeline delivery points and instantaneously transmits the information to central dispatching offices miles away.

These and many other new developments are used by Texas Eastern to meet the nation's growing demand for natural gas as a fuel for homes and industry.

Lucille Neal Sings When Spanish Fails

Local Woman Returns From Puerto Rico

When Pickaway County's International Farm Youth Exchange delegate to Puerto Rico could not communicate with her hostess in plain language, she used song.

Miss Lucille Neal said today that, although the mother of the family with which she lived in Puerto Rico could speak only Spanish, she enjoyed American songs.

Miss Neal said when she arrived in Puerto Rico, "they didn't sing much." Their music is for dancing. It has rhythm but lacks words. "When I left, the family and school were singing our folk songs," she added.

Miss Neal, 22, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Von Neal, who farm 122 acres near Orient. SHE WAS the last IFYE from Ohio in 1951 and was among the first American youths to go to Puerto Rico. She was there about six weeks, returning home March 22.

The IFYE program is designed to promote world understanding through exchange visits between farm youth in the United States and other countries. It is financed by contributions and administered by the agricultural extension service.

Miss Neal said she was "treated like a queen" and described her Puerto Rican host family and school children she met as offering "no end of hospitality."

Puerto Rico is struggling with unemployment, health and sanitation problems. The people are proud of their "operation bootstrap," a plan to raise living standards through their own initiative but they give the United States credit for assistance.

In 4-H and agricultural extension, projects are designed for needs. "If a girl needs home beautification," Miss Neal said, "that's her project." They do not use standard project books. Many projects now teach food preservation.

As many other exchangers to other countries have discovered, Miss Neal found many wrong impressions to correct. Puerto Ricans expected she would drink, smoke and talk a lot. They were surprised when she was willing to work in the fields.

Most agriculture is on 50 to 60 degree slopes that have to be hand-cultivated. Sugar cane is the principal crop.

Miss Neal will be available to speak at meetings in the state and

MICE OVER MEN

MICE AND monkeys did it. So why can't man? The rocket-borne mice and monkeys that went up 80 miles apparently did all right in "outer space." It's true none of the monks survived the experiment. But they did last out the actual flight. Four became grease-spots on the New Mexico desert after their parachutes failed to open. The fifth landed alive but died of "heat prostration" before rescue.

As for the mice—ah, they are "still living and propagating freely" back on the planet earth. Films from the automatic camera in the rocket's nose section, where they rode, show their behavior during two interesting periods of the trip. For three minutes of "weightless" existence they simply floated around in the free-falling chamber. Then, after they got into the pull of gravity again, they hopped around normally as if nothing had happened.

Thus it appears that mere weightlessness for several minutes does a mammal no harm. And the ascendancy of mouse over man is now calculated as 80 minus 13, or 67 miles.

WORK TO BE DONE

AT HAND IS the season many persons have looked forward to all Winter, when gardening—flower and vegetable—begins to demand the attention of those with a little ground at their disposal. Lawns also, it is apparent, require raking and rolling, with a little grass seed needed here and there, and perhaps fertilizer.

Gardening time always seems to burst upon the unwary without warning, despite the fact that it is a summer-long chore that begins annually about April 1. One day it is something to be anticipated with pleasure or foreboding, as the case may be, and the next it is a fact that stares one in the face.

No class of citizenry is more optimistic than the enthusiastic gardener. Each winter he or she visualizes the wonders that nature and digging will accomplish come spring and summer. If the results are never quite up to expectations, and sometimes far from it, interest never lessens. Perhaps this will be the year that roses and radishes will thrive as never before.

Russia's claims of superior air power may ultimately be exposed as partly hot air power.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Mr. Dore Schary, the motion picture producer, in the course of a lawsuit against a society in Los Angeles, known as the Wage Earners Committee, issued a public statement that is of more than passing interest.

The Wage Earners Committee has assumed the task of picketing motion pictures to which it objects. Labor unions have established the legality of the right to picket. Now that picketing is being done in non-labor matters, it comes as a shock that a social device intended to be used as a weapon of labor is being used as a weapon of opinion.

Picketing is legalized coercion. It has always been doubtful to me whether the picket line could be legalized in view of the citizen's right to have access to a building without molestation. However, the picket line has been legalized and will now be used for any purpose whatsoever until the public gets fed up with it and counter-illustration is passed. This is an example of what happens when a wrong device is legalized for political reasons.

Mr. Schary feels that he has been libeled and has gone to the courts. This is any man's right in the United States. His purpose is interesting. He goes to the courts, not to punish the libelers, but to set his own record straight, which is what he says in his advertisement.

That is a fascinating procedure, particularly for those who feel aggrieved at being held up to opprobrium for their conduct. How this can be done in our courts, under the prevailing rules of evidence, it is difficult to grasp. A witness cannot read a statement in a court of law, as, for instance, Owen Lattimore did before the McCarran committee. He can only answer relevant and material questions. If the questions are not asked, they cannot be answered.

Still, a competent lawyer can find ways of getting statements into the record. It would seem to me more feasible if Mr. Schary voluntarily appeared before the House Committee on Un-American Activities and asked to be heard in defense of his honor as an American, he believing that it had been impugned.

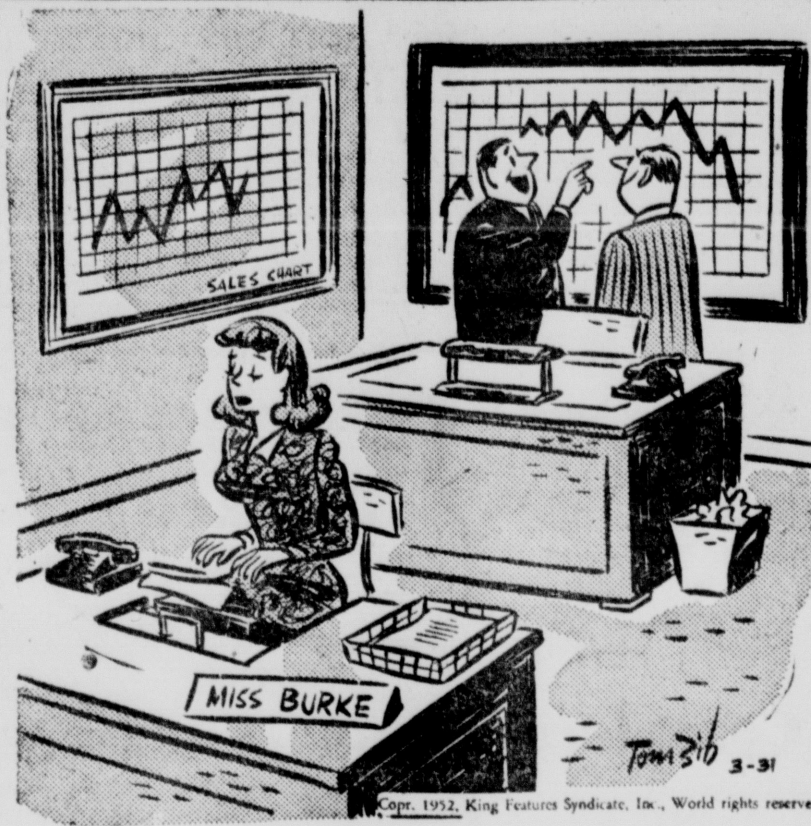

In his advertisement, Dore Schary makes this statement:

"Further, freedom of speech does not include the right of private groups to assume the functions of established government agencies and boards of inquiry."

He must have written that hurriedly, because it is altogether contrary to the history of the United States. Most important "purifications" and "reforms" in this country are the product of investigations by private organizations and individuals who created such furores that the Congress and state legislatures had to respond to their activities. It is absurd, in American life and tradition, to depend upon government for all things. After all, our theory of politics is that government is the agent, not the master, of the people, and that the "people" consists of many individuals each of whom has inalienable rights.

A Serious Emotional Conflict May Bring On Many Symptoms

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AN emotional conflict can be serious enough to cause a real physical illness, which is then known as psychosomatic illness. Treatments which attempt to bypass such a conflict are simply "mental crutches" and fail to cure the trouble.

A person can usually solve his conflicts without endangering his health—usually, but not always. A good portion of the people in the world have symptoms that spring from the emotions.

Symptoms Vary

Some suffer from bowel complaints, known as nervous stomach or nervous bowel, which are due to deep emotional conflicts. Others have what is known as nervous heart, and still others may develop headaches or other psychosomatic symptoms.

In other cases, a serious emotional conflict interferes with a person's behavior or mental powers. He may become dull, over-fatigued, depressed, or perhaps over-aggressive.

It is not always easy to determine whether or not these symptoms really spring from an emotional conflict. Often, however, a sympathetic family physician can detect this condition.

When the real trouble is in the emotions, "mental crutches" are generally useless and sometimes harmful. For example, some patients are given sedatives without an attempt to find the basic emotional difficulty. This allows them to tolerate a condition which an understanding physician might be able to correct through confidential talks.

Chronic Fatigue

Other persons are advised to take rest cures when suffering from what is known as "nervous fatigue." But doctors know that most people with chronic forms of fatigue are not suffering from overwork, but from the effects of inner emotional conflicts. Such a person simply takes his conflict along with him on his vacation or rest cure. He continues to feel nervous and exhausted all during the vacation and after he returns to work.

Many people also take rest cures to try to relieve their feelings of helplessness, hopelessness, inadequacy or frustration. Here again, this type of treatment is of no avail. These people need the understanding of someone who can treat their emotional disorders. Often they would save themselves much suffering if they could be led to confide in their family physician or in a psychiatrist, if necessary.

"H'm," said Miss Julie, conveying to Henri what he knew quite well—that she did not approve of girls going to college. "You going?"

"Yes," Henri said. "I feel I ought to be there. It's a great occasion." "I must send her a trifle," Miss Julie said. "Good-bye Henri. Remember me in your prayers."

Henri promised. He replaced his hat and watched her cross the street.

As Henri walked along, something small and round gleamed on the sidewalk before him. It was a ten-cent piece.

SYNOPSIS

It is the year 1914 and we find Henry Lemay and his sister, living in the somnolent city of Charleston, S. C., living in anticipation of a more abundant life. News has reached them that the Lemay family "fortune" long impounded in France, may be released to them. "Oh, blessed escape from the genteel poverty that has too long engulfed them," Henry exclaims. What wonderful tidings for Henry, his sister, on her return to them from college, any day now. But, will she take up with that Calvert boy, again? Heaven forbid, Henri prays.

CHAPTER THREE

MISS JULIE did not perhaps care about the money involved, but she was a recognized authority on the history of her own and other families and loved to dispense her knowledge.

"Theophile Lemay," she said to Henri, "was your grandfather's third cousin once removed. He married into a family named Perrier. They owned a lot of vineyards and I believe it was said that they watered the wine they sold. I expect Theophile may have come into the property in some way or other. How much money it was is another question. It would have to be considerable if it's to go around the Lemay family. They were like rabbits, all of them."

"I don't know the hows and whys of the money being tied up so long," Henri said, determinedly ignoring this coarseness, "but I judge it's some legal technicality involved."

"If that's the case," said Miss Julie, "you'd best not put too much stock in it. The lawyers will get whatever there is. He that expecteth little will not be disappointed. A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." She broke off her imitation of Bartlett's Quotations.

"Well, I've got to be running along, Henri. I want to make me confession to Father D.D. Father Schmidt at the cathedral is getting a bit hard of hearing and I don't want to bellow me sins out to every Tom, Dick and Harry."

"Do you want to give ten dollars for this investigation?" Henri asked.

"I'll have to see about it," Miss Julie said. "Ten dollars is a heap of money. Give Heloise my love, and the child, too. She'll be home soon, I suppose."

"Her graduation is next Saturday," Henri said proudly.

"H'm," said Miss Julie, conveying to Henri what he knew quite well—that she did not approve of girls going to college. "You going?"

"Yes," Henri said. "I feel I ought to be there. It's a great occasion."

"I must send her a trifle," Miss Julie said. "Good-bye Henri. Remember me in your prayers."

Henri promised. He replaced his hat and watched her cross the street.

As Henri walked along, something small and round gleamed on the sidewalk before him. It was a ten-cent piece.

The heir to the Lemay millions underwent a struggle. That dime promised a good cigar, and Henri's mouth almost watered publicly. His Christmas box of Colorado claret, Henry O'Donnell's regular gift, had long been exhausted, probably with the assistance of Lafayette Washington Lee, their hanger-on, via Queenie the cook, and Henri could not often afford to buy a cigar.

Now, the thought having entered his mind, he longed for one. But could he, literally and figuratively, stoop to retrieve a base coin right there in the street?

Henri set a thin shoe carefully over the piece of money.

Ten cents. On the one hand, a good cigar, and, on the other hand, the indignity of bending over to pick up a dime on King street on Saturday afternoon, instead of grandly pointing it out to some small boy, as befitted the son of George Lemay, once owner of broad acres along the Edisto river.

An old superstition came to Henri's aid. "Coming events," he murmured, "cast their shadows before." Suddenly seeing the finding of the dime as a good omen for his assistance, he decided that it would not be a bad omen, so he picked up the coin.

Perhaps, he thought, Heloise would enjoy a bit of ice cream. Cigars, after all, were bad for a singer. Henri bought a half-pint container of vanilla and hurried home before it could melt. He did not like to be seen carrying packages, but luckily the neighborhood piazzas were deserted.

He unlocked the door and entered the piazza, and the stooped figure of Lafayette Washington Lee rose from its restful posture at the rear.

"Evening, Mistuh Henri," Lafayette mumbled, and collapsed.

"Good-evening, Lafayette," Henri said. He hung his hat on the ancient hatrack, rested his cane in the umbrella stand, and went to the kitchen, where he found the diminutive Queenie ironing a shirt.

"Queenie, I've brought some ice cream for Miss Heloise. You'd better serve it before it melts."

"Yes suh," Queenie said, replacing the iron on the stove. "You wants some?"

"No, I don't believe so. Better have some yourself."

"Thank you, Mistuh Henri," Queenie said, "but I don't think I cares for any this afternoon."

Henri nodded curtly. For a moment, with the sensitivity of the poor, he wondered if Queenie was gibing at the fact that he had brought only a half pint, but he decided that she wasn't. It was just the way of everyone in that house, forever pretending not to want something so that somebody else could have enough.

Heloise sat in a rocking chair on the upstairs piazza hemming a handkerchief. She was a short plump woman, a couple of years younger than her brother, with a hearty round face, pretty blue eyes, and a small, round, humorous mouth. She was dressed in thin gray cotton, and the toes of sensible black shoes peeped out from her long skirts. Her hair, which was graying, was worn high on her head and swept back from her brow, giving an even greater look of frankness to her pleasant features.

"Enjoy your walk, Brother?" she inquired.

Henri sat down rather wearily in the other piazza rocker. "Not so much as I might have," he said. "I met Cousin Julie and she hauled me over the coals because she hadn't been told about the legacy."

"Dear me," Heloise said, choking back a laugh.

"She was asking hard candy," Henri complained, and then Heloise did laugh.

"Dignity," Heloise said tolerantly, "was never Cousin Julie's long suit."

"And, of course, she's put out about not being told. How do you suppose she found out? I haven't told anybody."

"Neither have I," Heloise said quickly. "The grapevine, I expect." She indicated the general direction of the kitchen and rolled her eyes. Whereupon, as if conjured up, Queenie appeared with the ice cream.

Heloise started and then looked pleased.

"Well, what a surprise!" she exclaimed. "Thank you, Queenie." Queenie silently vanished. "Aren't you going to have some?"

"No, I just thought a mouthful would taste good to you," Henri said.

"That legacy isn't making you extravagant?"

"No," Henri said. "You know I'm too old a bird to be caught with that sort of thing, Sister. I found a dime," he admitted, flushing.

"Well, I'm glad you weren't too proud to pick it up. I feel like a pig, eating all by myself. Go on, tell me what Cousin Julie said about the legacy?"

"She don't seem to take much stock in it. She said ten dollars was a heap of money."

"On the other hand, I don't like to think of depriving you and Leonie of—of a competence," Henri said, "just to save a few dollars."

Heloise was silent. Henri, disappointed at her lack of support, although of course he hadn't expected it, dropped that aspect of the subject. "I wish Queenie wouldn't talk," he said fretfully.

WASHINGTON, March 31—An amendment to the 1950 revenue act will prevent President Truman and William Hillman, who cooperated in writing the book entitled "Mr. President," from cleaning up heavy profits on their joint literary efforts. However, the two will make a few fast bucks—it took only a year to document Mr. Truman—from what promises to be a best-seller.

Ironically, the amendment which cuts down their receipts from royalties is known as the "Eisenhower law" among tax experts and lawyers at Washington. It was written into the statute because the easy-going Internal Revenue permitted "like" to pay only a capital gains tax of 25 per cent on his volume, "Crusade in Europe," as against an 80 or 90 per cent tax that would have been levied if his literary earnings had been taxed as ordinary income.

INCIDENTAL — It is understood that Eisenhower's financial advisers suggested that he turn over his book to the publishers for the sum of $500,000, instead of accepting royalties based on sales. Thus, he was selling a piece of property which he had acquired from his experience as European commander.

Internal Revenue officials also held that Eisenhower's real job was making war, and that writing was an incidental occupation. Many other authors and musical composers have since tried the same scheme, but without success. Since they were professionals in those lines, they were denied the advantage given to "like" Irving Berlin and Rafael Sabatini were two losers.

UPROAR — But this decision raised such an uproar on Capitol Hill that the loophole was closed unanimously by members of both parties on the House Ways and Means Committee. It was pointed out by statisticians that this generous ruling resulted in a capital gains tax of only $125,000 as against a $400,000 levy, if the book profits had been held to be ordinary income.

It should be noted that there was nothing illegal in the Eisenhower operation. His smart legal, literary and financial advisers simply told him how to take advantage of this legislative loophole. But he will be the last to enjoy and profit from it.

GOLD — Although the details of the Truman-Hillman deal with the publishers are not known yet, it is understood that they were extremely favorable. Truman is believed to be the first president to sponsor a book about himself while in office. Naturally, there is gold in those pages for everybody concerned.

"Mr. President" sells for $5 a copy, and the first run was 110,000 copies. It is probable that the total sale will exceed 500,000, and it may go as high as 1,000,000. For the sake of calculation, it can be assumed that the authors will receive royalties of 40 per cent, or $2 a copy. It may even be 50 per cent.

By Ray Tucker

It is possible that the book may have been sold for a specific purchase price, like Eisenhower's. But that is doubtful, since there would now be no tax advantage in such a transaction.

THREAT — Thus, if the book sells only 550,000 copies on a 40 per cent royalty basis, gross receipts would total $2,750,000. The two authors' share would amount to $1,100,000. At 50 per cent royalty it would be higher, of course.

Now, if that $1,100,000 were taxed as Eisenhower's production was, Truman and Hillman would net $825,000, or more than $400,000 each, assuming that they split the loot 50-50.

But the tax should approximate 80 per cent under the "Eisenhower law." Therefore their joint net will be only $220,000, or $110,000 each.

Thus Truman's favorite military man, next to General George C. Marshall, is a pocket-book as well as a political threat to the man in the White House.

MILLIONAIRE — This literary "windfall," together with increases in his salary and spending allowance, will enable Truman to boast that no man ever made more money out of the White House than he. It is a veritable Horatio Alger story for a man who once went bankrupt, and had to mortgage part of the family farm while he served in the Senate less than seven years ago.

It is estimated that Truman will have saved at least $300,000 from his presidential income and other perquisites. His book receipts will boost that figure to more than $400,000. If he should run again and be reelected, his possible savings would make him a millionaire.

Margaret is said to be earning more than $200,000 a year, although she may not prosper so well after her father quits public life. She is a mediocre songstress and actress, experts admit.

Truman hopes to write and lecture on government upon retirement. His modest home in Independence, Mo. is paid for. Remaining farm holdings in that area have increased in value from construction of a great government aviation center in the neighborhood.

DOUBTFUL — It is doubtful if future presidential families will use the White House for profit-making pursuits as the Roosevelts and Trumans have. The precedent they established may die with them.

Every candidate on the Republican and Democratic sides believes in keeping his family out of politics and public activity generally. That is especially true of Senator Taft and General Eisenhower, the most likely prospects to succeed Truman.

In the Democratic camp Senator Russell is a bachelor, Governor Stevenson of Illinois has no wife, Senator Kerr is a millionaire, and Senator Kefauver has already "cleaned up" on his crime investigation publicity.

MICE OVER MEN

MICE AND monkeys did it. So why can't man? The rocket-borne mice and monkeys that went up 80 miles apparently did all right in "outer space." It's true none of the monkeys survived the experiment. But they did last out the actual flight. Four became grease-spots on the New Mexico desert after their parachutes failed to open. The fifth landed alive but died of "heat prostration" before rescue.

As for the mice—ah, they are "still living and propagating freely" back on the planet earth. Films from the automatic camera in the rocket's nose section, where they rode, show their behavior during two interesting periods of the trip. For three minutes of "weightless" existence they simply floated around in the free-falling chamber. Then, after they got into the pull of gravity again, they hopped around normally as if nothing had happened.

Thus it appears that mere weightlessness for several minutes does a mammal no harm. And the ascendancy of mouse over man is now calculated as 80 minus 13, or 67 miles.

WORK TO BE DONE

AT HAND IS the season many persons have looked forward to all Winter, when gardening—flower and vegetable—begins to demand the attention of those with a little ground at their disposal. Lawns also, it is apparent, require raking and rolling, with a little grass seed needed here and there, and perhaps fertilizer.

Gardening time always seems to burst upon the unwary without warning, despite the fact that it is a summer-long chore that begins annually about April 1. One day it is something to be anticipated with pleasure or foreboding, as the case may be, and the next it is a fact that stares one in the face.

No class of citizenry is more optimistic than the enthusiastic gardener. Each winter he or she visualizes the wonders that nature and digging will accomplish come spring and summer. If the results are never quite up to expectations, and sometimes far from it, interest never lessens. Perhaps this will be the year that roses and radishes will thrive as never before.

Russia's claims of superior air power may ultimately be exposed as partly hot air power.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Mr. Dore Schary, the motion picture producer, in the course of a lawsuit against a society in Los Angeles, known as the Wage Earners Committee, issued a public statement that is of more than passing interest.

The Wage Earners Committee has assumed the task of picketing motion pictures to which it objects. Labor unions have established the legality of the right to picket. Now that picketing is being done in non-labor matters, it comes as a shock that a social device intended to be used as a weapon of labor is being used as a weapon of opinion.

Picketing is legalized coercion. It has always been doubtful to me whether the picket line could be legalized in view of the citizen's right to have access to a building without molestation. However, the picket line has been legalized and will now be used for any purpose whatsoever until the public gets fed up with it and counter-illustration is passed. This is an example of what happens when a wrong device is legalized for political reasons.

Mr. Schary feels that he has been libeled and has gone to the courts. This is any man's right in the United States. His purpose is interesting. He goes to the courts, not to punish the libelers, but to set his own record straight, which is what he says in his advertisement.

That is a fascinating procedure, particularly for those who feel aggrieved at being held up to opprobrium for their conduct. How this can be done in our courts, under the prevailing rules of evidence, it is difficult to grasp. A witness cannot read a statement in a court of law, as, for instance, Owen Lattimore did before the McCarran committee. He can only answer relevant and material questions. If the questions are not asked, they cannot be answered.

Still, a competent lawyer can find ways of getting statements into the record. It would seem to me more feasible if Mr. Schary voluntarily appeared before the House Committee on Un-American Activities and asked to be heard in defense of his honor as an American, he believing that it had been impugned.

In his advertisement, Dore Schary makes this statement:

"Further, freedom of speech does not include the right of private groups to assume the functions of established government agencies and boards of inquiry."

He must have written that hurriedly, because it is altogether contrary to the history of the United States. Most important "purifications" and "reforms" in this country are the product of investigations by private organizations and individuals who created such furores that the Congress and state legislatures had to respond to their activities. It is absurd, in American life and tradition, to depend upon government for all things. After all, our theory of politics is that government is the agent, not the master, of the people, and that the "people" consists of many individuals each of whom has inalienable rights.

A Serious Emotional Conflict May Bring On Many Symptoms

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AN emotional conflict can be serious enough to cause a real physical illness, which is then known as psychosomatic illness. Treatments which attempt to bypass such a conflict are simply "mental crutches" and fail to cure the trouble.

A person can usually solve his conflicts without endangering his health—usually, but not always. A good portion of the people in the world have symptoms that spring from the emotions.

Symptoms Vary

Some suffer from bowel complaints, known as nervous stomach or nervous bowel, which are due to deep emotional conflicts. Others have what is known as nervous heart, and still others may develop headaches or other psychosomatic symptoms.

In other cases, a serious emotional conflict interferes with a person's behavior or mental powers. He may become dull, over-fatigued, depressed, or perhaps over-aggressive.

It is not always easy to determine whether or not these symptoms really spring from an emotional conflict. Often, however, a sympathetic family physician can detect this condition.

When the real trouble is in the emotions, "mental crutches" are generally useless and sometimes harmful. For example, some patients are given sedatives without an attempt to find the basic emotional difficulty. This allows them to tolerate a condition which an understanding physician might be able to correct through confidential talks.

Chronic Fatigue

Other persons are advised to take rest cures when suffering from what is known as "nervous fatigue." But doctors know that most people with chronic forms of fatigue are not suffering from overwork, but from the effects of inner emotional conflicts. Such a person simply takes his conflict along with him on his vacation or rest cure. He continues to feel nervous and exhausted all during the vacation and after he returns to work.

Many people also take rest cures to try to relieve their feelings of helplessness, hopelessness, inadequacy or frustration. Here again, this type of treatment is of no avail. These people need the understanding of someone who can treat their emotional disorders. Often they would save themselves much suffering if they could be led to confide in their family physician or in a psychiatrist, if necessary.

SYNOPSIS

It is the year 1914 and we find Henry Lemay and his sister, living in the somewhat city of Clark, Ton, S. C. living in anticipation of a more abundant life. News has reached them that the Lemay family "fortune" long impounded in France, may be released to them. "Oh, blessed escape from the genteel poverty that has too long engulfed them," Henry exclaims. What wonderful tidings for Henry, his sister, on her return to them from college, any day now. But, will she take up with that Calvert boy, again? Heaven forbid, Henri prays.

CHAPTER THREE

MISS JULIE did not perhaps care about the money involved, but she was a recognized authority on the history of her own and other families and loved to dispense her knowledge.

"Theophile Lemay," she said to Henri, "was your grandfather's third cousin once removed. He married into a family named Perrier. They owned a lot of vineyards and I believe it was said that they watered the wine they sold. I expect Theophile may have come into the property in some way or other. How much money it was is another question. It would have to be considerable if it's to go around the Lemay family. They were like rabbits, all of them."

"I don't know the hows and whys of the money being tied up so long," Henri said, determinedly ignoring this coarseness, "but I judge it's some legal technicality involved."

"If that's the case," said Miss Julie, "you'd best not put too much stock in it. The lawyers will get whatever there is. He that expects little will not be disappointed. A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." She broke off her imitation of Bartlett's Quotations. "Well, I've got to be running along, Henri. I want to make me confession to Father Dodd. Father Schmidt at the cathedral is getting a bit hard of hearing and I don't want to bellow me sins out to every Tom, Dick and Harry."

"Do you want to give ten dollars for this investigation?" Henri asked.

"I'll have to see about it," Miss Julie said. "Ten dollars is a heap of money. Give Heloise my love, and the child, too. She'll be home soon, I suppose."

"Her graduation is next Saturday," Henri said proudly.

"H'm," said Miss Julie, conveying to Henri what he knew quite well—that she did not approve of girls going to college. "You going?"

"Yes," Henri said. "I feel I ought to be there. It's a great occasion."

"I must send her a trifle," Miss Julie said. "Good-bye Henri. Remember me in your prayers."

Henri promised. He replaced his hat and watched her cross the street.

As Henri walked along, something small and round gleamed on the sidewalk before him. It was a ten cent piece.

The heir to the Lemay millions underwent a struggle. That time promised a good cigar, and Henri's mouth almost watered publicly. His Christmas box of Colorado claret, Henry O'Donnell's regular gift, had long been exhausted, probably with the assistance of Lafayette Washington Lee, their hanger-on, via Queenie the cook, and Henri could not often afford to buy a cigar. Now, the thought having entered his mind, he longed for one. But could he, literally and figuratively, stoop to retrieve a base coin right there in the street?

Henri set a thin shoe carefully over the piece of money.

Ten cents. On the one hand, a good cigar, and, on the other hand, the indignity of bending over to pick up a dime on King street on Saturday afternoon, instead of grandly pointing it out to some small boy, as befitted the son of George Lemay, once owner of broad acres along the Edisto river.

An old superstition came to Henri's aid. "Coming events," he murmured, "cast their shadows before." Suddenly seeing the finding of the dime as a good omen for his inheritance, he decided that it would not do to affront fortune, so he picked up the coin.

Perhaps, he thought, Heloise would enjoy a bit of ice cream. Cigars, after all, were bad for a singer. Henri bought a half-pint container of vanilla and hurried home before it could melt. He did not like to be seen carrying packages, but luckily the neighborhood piazzas were deserted.

He unlocked the door and entered the piazza, and the stooped figure of Lafayette Washington Lee rose from its restful posture at the rear.

"Evening, Mistuh Henri," Lafayette mumbled, and collapsed.

"Good-evening, Lafayette," Henri said. He hung his hat on the ancient hatrack, rested his cane in the umbrella stand, and went to the kitchen, where he found the diminutive Queenie ironing a shirt.

"Queenie, I've brought some ice cream for Miss Heloise. You'd better serve it before it melts."

"Yes sah," Queenie said, replacing the iron on the stove. "You wants some?"

"No, I don't believe so. Better have some yourself."

"Thank you, Mistuh Henri," Queenie said, "but I don't think I cares for any this afternoon."

Henri nodded curtly. For a moment, with the sensitivity of the poor, he wondered if Queenie was gibing at the fact that he had brought only a half pint, but he decided that she wasn't. It was just the way of everyone in that house, forever pretending not to want something so that somebody else could have enough. Heloise sat in a rocking chair on the upstairs piazza hemming a handkerchief. She was a short plump woman, a couple of years younger than her brother, with a hearty round face, pretty blue eyes, and a small, round, humorous mouth. She was dressed in thin gray cotton, and the toes of sensible black shoes peeped out from her long skirts. Her hair, which was graying, was worn high on her head and swept back from her brow, giving an even greater look of frankness to her pleasant features.

"Enjoy your walk, Brother?" she inquired.

Henri sat down rather wearily in the other piazza rocker. "Not so much as I might have," he said. "I met Cousin Julie and she hauled me over the coals because she hadn't been told about the legacy."

"Dear me," Heloise said, choking back a laugh.

"She was eating hard candy," Henri complained, and then Heloise did laugh.

"Dignity," Heloise said tolerantly, "was never Cousin Julie's long suit."

"And, of course, she's put out about not being told. How do you suppose she found out? I haven't told anybody."

"Neither have I," Heloise said quickly. "The grapevine, I expect." She indicated the general direction of the kitchen and rolled her eyes. Whereupon, as if conjured up, Queenie appeared with the ice cream.

Heloise started and then looked pleased.

"Well, what a surprise!" she exclaimed. "Thank you, Queenie. Queenie silently vanished. "Aren't you going to have some?"

"No, I just thought a mouthful would taste good to you," Henri said.

"It was very thoughtful. I hope that legacy isn't making you extravagant."

"No," Henri said. "You know I'm too old a bird to be caught with that sort of thing. Sister, I found a dime," he admitted, flushing.

"Well, I'm glad you weren't too proud to pick it up. I feel like a pig, eating all by myself. Go on, tell me what Cousin Julie said about the legacy."

"She don't seem to take much stock in it. She said ten dollars was a heap of money."

"It certainly is."

"On the other hand, I don't like to think of depriving you and Leonie of—of a competence," Henri said, "just to save a few dollars."

Heloise was silent. Henri, disappointed at her lack of support, although of course he hadn't expected it, dropped that aspect of the subject. "I wish Queenie wouldn't talk," he said fretfully.

1952 Hardball Test To Begin Next Monday

Seven Teams To Complete For Title

A seven-team baseball tournament will begin next Monday for the 1952 Pickaway County hardball championship.

Ashville, defending champions, and Pickaway Township hardball crews are to meet in the first game of the 1952 tournament at noon next Monday.

Slated to meet in the second game of the tournament are Walnut and Monroe, while Jackson and Darby will clash in the final game of the first round.

Scio Township baseballers drew by for the opening round and will automatically move into the semifinals of the winner's bracket.

THIS YEAR'S tournament will be a true double elimination contest, with each team having to be beaten twice before losing out.

In other words, winner of the winner's bracket will meet the winner of the loser's bracket at the conclusion of the tournament. The loser's bracket winner can take the championship by besting the winner's bracket winners two games in a row.

All games this year are hoped to be played upon the Ashville community park diamond. Wherever two games are scheduled for one day, the first will begin at noon and the second will start at about 1:30.

Two games are due each on April 7, 9, 11, 14 and 16, while single games are due on April 18 and 21. The playoff game, if necessary, will be held April 23.

Winner of the double-elimination test will take the championship and represent the county in the district "B" tournament later in Columbus.

Clark Collects Azalea Open Test

WILMINGTON, N. C., March 31.—Last year when they were handing out the prize money in the Azalea Open Golf Tournament, Jimmy Clark of Laguna Beach, Calif., was among the missing.

Through a misunderstanding, tournament officials thought he had withdrawn after a pair of so-so rounds. When Jimmy showed up for the third round, there was no spot for him in the pairings and he was out of business. Things were different Sunday. The Abingdon, Va., native was the man of the hour as he whacked par by 16 strokes to romp off with top money of $2,000.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP)—So long as President Truman, as head of the party, remained a possible candidate uncertainty about his intentions kept most would-be Democratic candidates mum.

Not all of them, of course. Senators Keafauer and Kerr have been beating the bushes. And Sen. Russell of Georgia announced his candidacy although, in his usual quiet way, he hasn't said much yet.

But the otherwise forced quietude among the Democrats enabled them to enjoy, if only for a short while, the spectacle of the Republicans being split into factions on views and candidates.

It is still too early to see how deep and irreparable the split among the Republicans is or how much damage it will do their hopes of winning the election in November.

In some cases, particularly among the candidates themselves, the split would seem irreparable. For instance, between Taft and Stassen.

IT IS difficult to see how Stassen, who has said Taft in the White House would be an American tragedy, could ever campaign for the Ohioan if Taft gets the party nomination.

But President Truman's decision not to run again has dumped the Democrat Party into the same scalding pot which has made the Republicans' faces red—wide-open scramble with plenty of time and room for party splits and bitterness.

Southern Democrats have stood firm against Truman because of his civil rights program and would have remained so if he ran again although, in fact, Truman did far more talking than acting on civil rights.

It's been the Supreme Court, through repeated decisions, which has acted on civil rights, not the President or Congress.

The division between the South and Truman was so deep that if he had been nominated he might have lost the South and thus the election in this year when the Democratic politicians know they have a tough row to hoe.

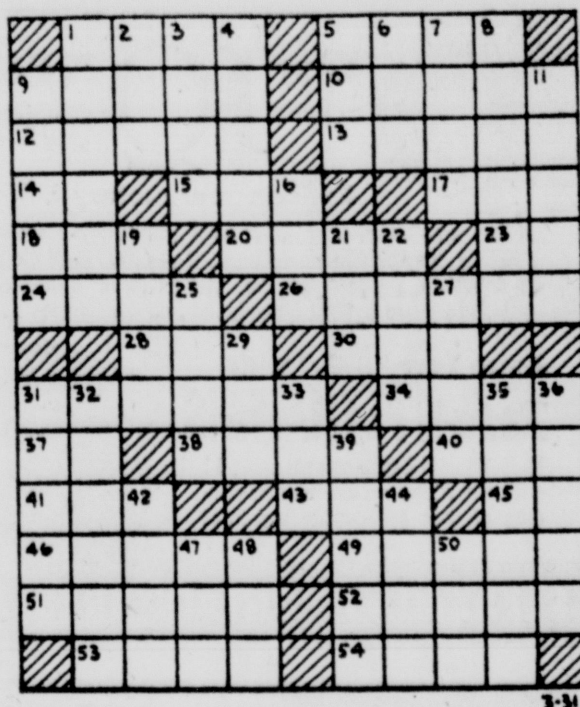

This realization may have been one of the main reasons, if not the principal one, which induced Truman not to seek another term. But his withdrawal is no guarantee the division won't remain.

WITHIN LESS than 24 hours after Truman announced his retirement, the governing board of Americans for Democratic Action served notice on the Democratic

24 Local Farmers Participate In Tour

Group Views Oil Refinery And Feed Mill

Trip Sponsored By Local Farm Bureau Coop.

Twenty-four Pickaway County farmers had the opportunity to tour the Farm Bureau refinery last Tuesday and Wednesday and to see how crude oil was processed into 120 octane gasoline.

These farmers took two days on a 450 mile trip, which included tours and visits to Cooperative Feed Mills, Glendale; Churchill Downs, Louisville; and the Farm Bureau Refining Co. at Louisville.

Along on the trip were Albert Alroy, near Orient; John and Edward Ater, Clarksburg; Willis Beavers, near Orient; Sterle Beavers, near Orient; Dave Bolender, Circleville; Harold Fisher, Ashville; Route 1; Francis Furniss, Mt. Sterling; Fritz Gronbach, Ashville; C. D. Hosler, Mt. Sterling; Chester Noecker, Ashville; Route 1; Howard Oldaker, Circleville; Route 3; C. M. Reid, Williamsport; E. L. Sheets, Ashville; Route 3; Charles Shephard, Ashville; Route 1; J. B. Stevenson, Circleville; Route 4.

William Thraillkill, near Orient; Eddie Thomas, Ashville; and Russell Yapple, Circleville; Route 2. Also on the tour were Eddie Freeman, Ohio Farm Bureau petroleum division; Harold Breitfeiler, Pickaway Farm Bureau Co-op and Robert Smithers, Pickaway Farm Bureau Co-op manager.

THE GROUP LEFT Circleville by bus. The first stop was made at Glendale, where Ken Morical, plant superintendent, took the group through Cooperative Mills.

Feed from the mill is shipped to 13 different states, including Ohio. Morical explained the mill was working two shifts and the output was over 1,400 tons for the average day. Storage capacity at the mill for grains and feed ingredients exceeds one million bushels.

Arrangements were made to spend the night at Clifty Inn, located on a cliff 400 feet above the Ohio River at Clifty Falls State Park, Madison, Ind.

Wednesday morning, the group went on into Louisville and spent some time sight-seeing at Churchill Downs, home of the Kentucky Derby, then went on tour of the Farm Bureau refinery.

Bob Watson, plant superintendent, was with the group from Pickaway County for four hours while they visited the refinery. The group had the opportunity to see the barges on the Ohio river unloading crude oil at the docks and then followed the path of the crude oil through the many processes until it finally came out as finished petroleum products.

One of the most outstanding features of the trip through the refinery was to see the new "cat cracker" in operation. Watson explained "the new catalytic cracking unit has been in operation only four weeks. It has enabled us to increase the efficiency of our operation and get 25 per cent more gasoline out of the crude oil, and it gives us a higher grade of gasoline than we had previously."

"IT TAKES over 273,000 gallons of crude oil to keep the plant in operation for one day," he added.

While at the refinery, the group had the opportunity to see the "fire power" show put on by Ethyl Corp. This was a demonstration of the different ways fires are caused by gasoline, plus methods to use in extinguishing fires.

The trip was sponsored by the petroleum division of the Ohio Farm Bureau Cooperative and the Pickaway Farm Bureau.

GI Complains Of Being Held Long In Jail

ELYRIA, March 31 — (P) — "I didn't do anything except get a little drunk," says David Hazlerigg, a 35-year-old Great Lakes sailor, in his cell in Lorain County jail.

But, he complained to a reporter, he has been in jail for four months—not for any crime, but because he is being held as a material witness.

On Nov. 17, he accused two drinking companions of picking his pocket of $10 in Lorain. The charge against him was intoxication, for which he was fined $10 and costs.

All three still are in jail, waiting for the case to be settled. The other two are William Chrisley, 39, of High Point, N. C., and Leslie Robinson, 41, of St. Paul, Minn.

Assistant County Prosecutor Harold S. Ewing said: "The sailors go out on a binge, get rolled and make an accusation of pocket picking. We have to hold them under bond as material witnesses. Otherwise, we know they wouldn't be around for the trial of whoever they have accused. They would just take off."

Hazlerigg, however, told a reporter that he has been forbidden to use the telephone to locate someone who can supply his bail bond of $500.

An estimated 45 per cent of all airline hostesses leave annually to get married.

Sailor Confesses Slaying Last May

MARION, March 31 — (P) — A young naval steward who police say admitted a slaying because a movie's dialogue bothered his conscience will be accused of manslaughter.

He is Paul Richardson, 23, on leave from the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. Richardson told police he killed Jimmy Keys, 40, last May 18, after the two had argued. They had been riding in Richardson's car. Richardson said he lost 32 pounds worrying—but that he couldn't admit the slaying until he sat through two showings of the movie, "The Wild North."

"The world is too wide to run away from sin," was the line Richardson said prompted him to con-

ess. The film tells the story of a crime, later confesses and is a murderer who runs away from his guilt.

24 Local Farmers Participate In Tour

Group Views Oil Refinery And Feed Mill

Trip Sponsored By Local Farm Bureau Coop.

Twenty-four Pickaway County farmers had the opportunity to tour the Farm Bureau refinery last Tuesday and Wednesday and to see how crude oil was processed into 120 octane gasoline.

These farmers took two days on a 450 mile trip, which included tours and visits to Cooperative Feed Mills, Glendale; Churchill Downs, Louisville; and the Farm Bureau Refining Co. at Louisville.

Along on the trip were Albert Al-loy, near Orient; John and Edward Ater, Clarksburg; Willis Beavers, near Orient; Sterle Beavers, near Orient; Dave Bolender, Circleville; Harold Fisher, Ashville; Harold Furniss, Mt. Sterling; Fritz Gronbach, Ashville; C. D. Hosler, Mt. Sterling; Chester Noecker, Ashville; Howard Oldaker, Circleville; E. L. Sheets, Ashville; Charles Shepard, Ashville; J. B. Stevenson, Circleville; William Thraikill, near Orient; Eddie Thomas, Ashville; and Russell Yaple, Circleville. Also on the tour were Eddie Freeman, Ohio Farm Bureau petroleum division; Harold Breitfeller, Pickaway Farm Bureau Co-op and Robert Smithers, Pickaway Farm Bureau Co-op manager.

THE GROUP LEFT Circleville by bus. The first stop was made at Glendale, where Ken Morical, plant superintendent, took the group through Cooperative Mills. Feed from the mill is shipped to 13 different states, including Ohio. Morical explained the mill was working two shifts and the output was over 1,400 tons for the average day. Storage capacity at the mill for grains and feed ingredients exceeds one million bushels.

Arrangements were made to spend the night at Clifty Inn, located on a cliff 400 feet above the Ohio River at Clifty Falls State Park, Madison, Ind.

Wednesday morning, the group went on into Louisville and spent some time sight-seeing at Churchill Downs, home of the Kentucky Derby, then went on tour of the Farm Bureau refinery.

Bob Watson, plant superintendent, was with the group from Pickaway County for four hours while they visited the refinery. The group had the opportunity to see the barges on the Ohio river unloading crude oil at the docks and then followed the path of the crude oil through the many processes until it finally came out as finished petroleum products.

One of the most outstanding features of the trip through the refinery was to see the new "cat cracker" in operation. Watson explained "the new catalytic cracking unit has been in operation only four weeks. It has enabled us to increase the efficiency of our operation and get 25 per cent more gasoline out of the crude oil, and it gives us a higher grade of gasoline than we had previously."

"IT TAKES over 273,000 gallons of crude oil to keep the plant in operation for one day," he added.
